Modesto, California - Stanislaus County District Attorney Jeff Laugero announced today that Brandy Lee Rose Devine, age 36, of Turlock was found unsuitable for parole at a November 3, 2023 hearing of the State Board of Parole Hearings in the Central California Women's Facility in Chowchilla. Deputy District Attorney Holly MacKinnon appeared at the hearing on behalf of the People.

On Friday, July 13, 2012, Devine, then age 25, put her two-year-old daughter, who had Cerebral Palsy, in her crib and closed the bedroom door, leaving the toddler alone in the room with four cats. Devine then failed to check on the child, provide food, or give prescription medication to her for the next three days. She did feed her other three children who were seven months, four and six years old. Devine also used methamphetamine at one point in the very next room. Finally, around noon on Monday, July 16th, Devine checked on her daughter and found her dead in the crib. A law enforcement investigation found the baby's clothes were soiled from urine and feces and her diaper contained maggots. Although almost three years old, the child weighed only 14 pounds. An autopsy ruled the cause of death to be from acute dehydration and malnourishment.

On November 7, 2013, Devine was convicted by a Stanislaus County Superior Court jury of second-degree murder, felony child endangerment along with an enhancement for inflicting great bodily injury on a child under five years of age and being under the influence of a controlled substance. On December 13, 2013, Judge Dawna Frenchie sentenced Devine to serve 15-years-to-life in state prison.

During the hearing on June 23rd, prosecutor MacKinnon argued for continued confinement based on the danger Devine represents to the community should she be released given the callous circumstances of her crime, and her lack of insight into what caused her to intentionally put her two-year old baby in a room to die.

A prison psychologist who interviewed Devine gave the opinion she represented a low risk for future violence in the community if she were to be paroled. The Board noted Devine had received only one rules violation during her time in prison for fighting with another inmate in 2015 and had actively participated in programming such as a substance abuse, AA/NA, anger management, vocational training, and college courses. The Board felt Devine expressed remorse and had a release plan which included transitional housing, family support and employment.

After deliberations, the Board determined that although Devine qualified for “youthful offender parole” consideration, because she was 25 years old at the time of the offense, she still posed an unreasonable risk to public safety and denied parole for three years. The Board felt she lacked insight and had not adequately internalized her programming regarding her motivation behind locking only one of her children in a room with animals for three days. They felt she needed more programming in denial management, and she needed to develop a relapse prevention plan for child abuse and neglect.

This was Devine’s second parole hearing. She will be scheduled for another hearing in 2026, although she may petition the Board for an earlier date if there is a change in circumstances as defined under current law. Devine has been in prison for approximately nine years.
